

Drool bib - Mrs Flittig

Mrs Flittig has been kind enough to share this sweet pattern with the rest of us. Great other people want that kind of thing. We need a few more of them. If you want to learn more and sew this cute drool bib, watch below.

Description:

You can find the pattern by googling "drooling bib, Mrs Flittig" or you can use the link here: free recipe drool bib baby bib

I have changed the bib a bit - not the pattern, but the procedure. I have not used a seam allowance, but have zig-zag on the edge instead. It makes the bib curl a little bit at the edge, and I like that. But it is taste and pleasure.

Find the sweetest scraps of fabric from the stashes.

The back consists of a pee mat - you can buy this by the meter at "Jysk". The boxed side is placed down against the neck and the rubber side on the inside of the bib. The bib is waterproof and baby does not get wet on the chest. I fell for the model and think it's really cute that it has a "collar" up against the chin, which collects any drool that may come. The model is cute for both girls and boys - you just choose the fabric and color.

Mrs Flittig also has a very nice description of the procedure on her page, so find the sewing machine.